Commuter benefits

What are commuter benefits?

A commuter benefits program is an employer-provided benefits program that allows you to set aside pre-tax funds to pay for mass transit and parking expenses related to commuting to work. Qualified expenses can include public transit, vanpooling, and work-related parking costs.

Your pre-tax dollars are added to separate accounts for parking and/or transit expenses, and funds cannot be transferred between individual commuter accounts. Parking and/or transit benefits are limited to your expenses only. Reimbursement is not allowed for spouse or dependent parking or transit expenses.

Qualified expenses

You will receive a commuter debit card to pay for qualified transportation expenses at eligible merchants and service providers that accept debit cards for payment. The amount of the purchase will be deducted automatically from the appropriate account, based on the type of merchant and available balance in your parking and/or transit account.

Parking: Use your commuter debit card to pay for parking at or near your work location or at a mass transit station used for commuting, or you can make a payment on NetBenefits®.

Transit: Expenses for your transit account include costs associated with public transportation such as a train, bus, monorail, streetcar, subway, or ferry. Vanpool expenses are eligible, but the highway vehicle must seat at least 6 adults, excluding the driver.

Elections and spending

The IRS sets the maximum monthly pre-tax deduction limit–the maximum monthly limit that may be excluded from an employee's income for qualified commuter benefits. Keep in mind, if the amount you want to spend with your commuter debit card exceeds the IRS maximum monthly limit, the transaction will be declined. Instead, use another form of payment and reimburse yourself up to the IRS maximum monthly limit via NetBenefits.

Note: The IRS has a requirement that commuter claims must be submitted within 180 days of incurring the expense.
